

ELECT TWO MEN AS VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE SCOUT COUNCIL

Paul V. Forster, Bristol; and William G. Lange, Andalusia, Are Chosen

300 ATTEND MEETING

Session Held Last Night At Keystone Hotel,
Here

Paul V. Forster, Bristol, and Wil-ham G. Lange, Andalusia, were elected district vice-chairmen of the Lower Bucks District of the Bucks County Scouting Council, during the quarterly meeting at the Keystone Hotel, here, last evening. The two men with district chairman Walter W. Pit-zonka will represent the Lower Bucks District at the bi-monthly executive board meetings, at Doylestown.

Mr. Forster has been outstanding in his Scouting service through his recent leadership of the Bristol Community participation in the Bucks County Scouting maintenance campaign. Through his leadership, and the support of many helpful solicitors, Bristol is slowly reaching its quota.

Mr. Lange of the neighboring community of Andalusia has for a number of years been a committeeman with the Andalusia Group of a Seascout Ship, Scout Troop and Cub Pack. He has two sons in Scouting, one is the Mate of the Seascout Ship Wasp, and the other is a Star Scout.

Thirty men gathered last evening to report and study the Scouting problems of the district. Under the enthusiastic leadership of District Chairman Pitzonka the Lower Bucks District is becoming one of the strongest in the Council. Participation in the board meetings has increased at each meeting, and progress is being made in overcoming the numerous operating problems in the different units. Mr.
Pitzonka opened the meeting with the thought of "We are gathered for the good of the many boys in our various communities. What we are able to accomplish at this time will decide whether we go forward or we will become retarded. Scouts, Seascouts and Cubs are enthused by interested, devoted leaders. We must be that kind, and do our various jobs in the most efficient way. I will help any of you at any time to more efficiently serve your boys."

Neighborhood Commissioner David
Neill reported the Presbyterian Scout Troop and Cub Pack in excellent condition, and that with the addition of another assistant Scoutmaster the Methodist troop was making more progress. Reports were received from the colored troop, Bristol No. 3, from Rev. L. H. Willhite; Edgely, Scoutmaster Ronald Swain, Bristol No. 2,
the Episcopal Troop, by David Neill;
and district chairman Walter W. Pit-zonka spoke of the condition of Bristol No. 7. All of the troops are making a more effective appeal to their Scouts.
Skipper Fred Herman said there were seven additional Seascouts to be registered within a short time.

Under Skipper Robert F. Brenner,
Jr., and Scoutmaster Ludwig Tregl, neighborhood commissioner A. B.
Stiles of Croydon was able to give a report of good Scouting, and the possibility within a short time of having a Cub Pack organized. Neighborhood Commissioner William Amick, Sr., gave creditable comments on the Corn-wells, Newportville and Eddington School for Boys troops. An eloquent report was presented by neighborhood commissioner Harry E. Oliver on the progress of his Community Group of a Seascout Ship led by Skipper Behn, Scout Troop by Scoutmaster Bloch, and the Cub Pack with Cubmaster Joseph Kish. The Women's Auxiliary received a shower of appreciation for the fine work they are doing. The reports of the neighborhood commissioners included the report of district commissioner Herbert A. Pettit.

Merit Badge Commissioner Jesse
Wendkos spoke of the recent Review Board, and progress being made in his perfection of the organization. Paul V.
Forster who is replacing Warren S.
Snyder, as the Bristol review board chairman, outlined his plans for the future review board meetings. It was with regret that the monthly business obligation of Mr. Snyder has made it necessary for him to resign as the Merit Badge commissioner. Mr. Forster will assume the duties.

Ask Solicitor To Show His Proper Credentials

Persons making gifts to The Salva-fund drive are urged to verify workers' credentials or uniform, if they wish to be sure they are really contributing to The Salvation Army. Lt.- Colonel James A. Harvey, divisional commander of the "Army," warns:

"Word has come to our headquarters from several sources that other organizations, wearing uniforms similar to that of The Salvation Army, are very active at this time, soliciting gifts by personal calls and over the tele-

"Every civilian worker of the 1936

LINCOLN

(New York American, February 12, 1936)

No anniversary is more welcome—none comes to the American people, whatever their mind or feeling at the moment may be, with more healing and reviving touch—than the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, which we celebrate today.

A manly, clean and tender life, a blessing to his generation and to all posterity, it matters little in what aspect the career of Lincoln is approached or contemplated—we are better for recalling it.

It chastens our motives, firms our resolves, and lifts our gaze.

The America which Washington founded, and which Lincoln preserved, is a holy thing—a thing of the spirit—beyond defacement by the politicians and demagogues, the shallow and noisy little men, whom we have always with us and notably now, who would pervert its meaning and use its freedom for the promotion of base and selfish ends.

His early life on a barren farm in what was then the backwoods of our frontier country, its hardships, its meagre opportunities for growth and self-improvement, its stern demands—laid a Spartan foundation for the great career that was to follow.

Lincoln, who always was averse to any attempt to romanticize these days of privation and narrow living, said they

W. HARRY KING RECALLS MEETING WITH LINCOLN

Shook Hands With Great Emancipator at Meeting in Philadelphia

ALSO VOTED FOR HIM

One of the fondest memories cherished
by W. Harry King, Bath Road resident now in his 92nd year, is his meeting in the year 1864 with President Abraham Lincoln.

The great event, recalls Mr. King as he reminisces on this, the birthday anniversary of the great emancipator, occurred in a building on Chestnut street, near the center of the city of Philadelphia, some time previous to the re-election of Lincoln as President of these United States.

"That was a proud day for me," commented Mr. King today as he told how he and his sister, the late Mrs. Mary Burton, left Bristol by boat and travelled down the Delaware River to the Quaker City, where they planned to see Lincoln and do some shopping.

"We walked from the Philadelphia wharf to Chestnut street. There were vehicles for the public in those days, but we didn't use them very much."

Then he continued to tell of the gathering at which the famed President was the guest of honor. "Political meetings in those days were much different from those of today. They were more like social affairs, where people would mingle and converse. I believe

Call Firemen to Pump Water Out of Basement

A fire hydrant at Mifflin and Green streets was snapped off last night, by the frost, it is presumed. The water ran through the ground into the cellar of the residence of Patrick Elmer and the basement of the Elmer residence was flooded to almost knee-deep. The water was within a few inches of the furnace and in danger of extinguishing the fire.

The fire alarm was sounded and Bristol Consolidated firemen responded. The firemen donning high boots went into the basement and with the use of the 750-gallon pumper succeeded in keeping the water down until the hydrant valve could be shut off.

In the meantime the water department was advised of the break and workmen began digging through the frozen ground to reach the valve. Once the water was shut off the firemen quickly pumped the cellar dry.

It is reported frost has reached a depth of 3' 9" at the Bristol Cemetery.

The long continued cold spell continues to pile up ice in the Delaware River, as well as in the upper reaches of the stream and its branches. Ice and snow in the watershed region at the present time amount to the equivalent of a five or six-inch layer. With a slow thaw, this accumulation and the ice mass in the river here will pass off without danger.

A sudden rise in temperature, however, accompanied by a warm rain, probably would spell plenty of trouble from floods.

TO SUE MORRISVILLE FOR WATER MAIN USE

Carl B. Watson Brings Action
For $10,000 Damages
Against Borough

TO FILE SUIT THIS WEEK

(Special to Courier)

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 12—Suit in the Bucks County Court of Common Pleas for $10,000 damages against the Borough of Morrisville will be instituted this week by Carl B. Watson, a former prominent business man, here, who during the past few years has been retired because of ill health. This announcement was made yesterday by J.
Lawrence Grim, attorney for Mr. Watson.

The suit is for the use and occupancy of the water system in Edgell Hill Gardens, of Lower Makefield Township, by Morrisville borough in furnishing water to the residents of that section since 1921.

At the time of the development of Edgell Hill Gardens tract, which adjoins Morrisville borough on the north, A.
F. Robertshaw, the owner, had about 1500 feet of four inch water main and 500 feet of two inch pipe laid there so that water would be available for anyone who purchased any of the homes there. According to borough officials, Mr. Robertshaw then asked the borough to furnish the water and charged this to the property owners. They say there was no agreement or statement as to any charge for any water mains.

The remaining part of the Edgell Hill Garden tract, which had not previously been disposed of, was sold to Mr. Watson a few years ago and he says the water system in the streets was included in the sale.

According to Mr. Watson's attorney, the developer of the tract back in 1921 was anxious to develop the tract and was willing that the borough use the mains to furnish water there, but it was not the intention of the owner to give to the Borough a Christmas present.
The new owner is now seeking to collect for the use of the mains for the past 15 years.

The tract in question is a highly residential site with some very costly homes there, and just what effect this suit will have on these residents is uncertain. Should Morrisville be charged

SON TELLS FATHER OF PRISON SENTENCE

Sixteen-Year-Old Boy Called Up Front at Court As Interpreter

LIQUOR FOUND ON FARM

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 12—When a Russian farmer, Stephen Dybiak, who pleaded guilty to four counts on a liquor violation charge, was sentenced by Judge Calvin S. Boyer on Monday afternoon to serve 30 days in the County Prison and given a suspended sentence on three others, a 16-year-old son was called up in front of the Court to interpret the action of his father.

Dybiak, before the Court was through pronouncing sentence, was surrounded by two sons, one of whom was Peter, 12, and his wife, who was at home on their Hilltown farm when the premises were raided by officers and a small amount of liquor found.

On the charge of unlawful manufacture of alcoholic liquor, the 49-year-old defendant was sentenced to serve thirty days from the day of commitment which was January 15. Dybiak was arrested January 13th.

Sentence was suspended on the counts of unlawful possession, keeping liquor for sale and possession of liquor in illegal package.

The Russian farmer, unable to understand English, was arrested by officers Hollowash, Curran and Myers and Constable A. R. Atkinson.

Judge Boyer, before imposing sentence, asked the defendant and his sons and wife why it was that Russians, Polish and Hungarian emigrants resorted to making moonshine when they were up against it financially.

He severely criticised the defendant for committing crime in the presence of his sons.

Judge Boyer advised the father to set a good example for his sons to follow rather than lead them into crime.

THREE BURN TO DEATH AS FLAMES DESTROY VICTORIA HOTEL, LAKEWOOD; TWENTY-FIVE OTHERS ARE INJURED

Body of Harry Gerlock, New York City, is Only One Identified After Blaze is Conquered—Hotel Register is Lost in The Flames—Cause of Blaze Unknown

(By International News Service)
LAKEWOOD, N. J., Feb. 12—Three persons—a man and two women—were burned to death, and more than 25 others were injured when flames today destroyed the three-story frame structure of the Victoria Hotel, formerly the Embassy Hotel.

Only one of the bodies was immediately identified, that of Harry Gerlock, of New York City. The three bodies were taken to a morgue.

Seven persons were taken to the Paul Kimball Hospital, seriously burned and injured. More than 20 others were treated for burns. Most of the guests were believed to have been from New York, and to have come here for Lincoln's Birthday holiday.

A preliminary check-up by the motel clerk force indicated four persons were unaccounted for.

An accurate check-up was not possible because the hotel's register was destroyed, leaving no list of guests available.

One young woman was killed when she leaped from a third-story window, her nightclothes aflame. Some of the women leaped to the ground as the flames roared through the structure.

The fire was discovered at 7 a. m., and firemen from Lakewood and nearby sections fought the flames for several hours. Of the 65 rooms in the hotel, 35 guests occupied rooms. Some of the guests made ropes of bedcloth-ing and other articles and climbed to the ground. Gerlock was trapped in his room on the second floor.

Firemen expressed the opinion the fire started in the hotel office. The cause of the fire was not known.

WHAT HE THOUGHT

If Abraham Lincoln were alive on this birthday of his we believe he would instantly raise his voice to plead that "government of the people, by the people and for the people" shall not be permitted to perish from the earth.

That was the creed of Lincoln's career as a national statesman. He set it forth very clearly in his famous letter to Horace Greeley, when he swept slavery—standing by itself—aside as the great issue and told him the real issue was to save "the Union." He perfected that idea with his Gettysburg address.

Abraham Lincoln did not set out to save a peculiar geographical arrangement of states but what they stood for from the day the Declaration of Independence was adopted—popular government.

In these troubled times there are men, even in our own country, who seek to raise issues of class, of sectionalism or of privilege, who think that only by a dictatorship of one kind or another can we work out our destiny. Lincoln would never agree with them. Instead, he would fight them.

Abraham Lincoln believed intensely that the people as a whole would follow honest, sane leadership along the right paths, and we think his career proves that he was right.

SURPRISE

120,000,000 American citizens, men, women, and children, awoke one morning about a week ago to receive through their newspaper the surprise of the year. William Edgar Borah, United States senator from Idaho and critic of every good, bad, and fairly tolerable president whom these people have voted into office in thirty years, had announced publicly that he would give those same citizens (whose past presidential tastes have not been his tastes) the opportunity to install him in the white house next November. He has waited thirty years for the people to take the initiative in this respect and has now decided to pocket his pride to save the people and the Constitution.

Talking about the Constitution, Borah has been the leading protector of that document since 1907. Just to hear him roll the word "Constitution" off his tongue in the senate creates a new reverence in the minds of the listeners for this national scripture and sends them home praying for the eternal life of this document.

There is one embarrassing question, however, which Senator Borah's Idaho constituents, not to mention a few other curious voters, may wish to have him explain. That is the "Potato Act of 1935." How did the braintrusts manage to write a potato bill and get Borah to vote for it when that bill was so unconstitutional that Franklin D. Roosevelt asked congress to repeal it? Any Idahoan had a right to expect that if a potato bill were written, Borah would bestow upon it the benefit of his superior constitutional judgment and write it himself. Who could possibly know more about the constitutionality of the potato crop than Borah?

Not only is there a new generation that never rode a train but there are children well along in school who never saw Father work patience. A man who is madly in love, who has been so recently married to the girl of his dreams, who wants to hold that happiness sacred from the touch of the world, sees such a message from another woman as a threat, an infringement, something to be resented and fought.

"No matter what his obligation to this other woman might be?" "Nothing mattered but Bernice, I told you."

What a grand case he would put into the Inspector's hands if he told his story like this to him! Here he painted a picture of himself as a man half-demented by his infatuation, thrown into a frenzy of anger against the murdered woman because of her intrusion into his happiness. Would my father advise him on what to say and how? He was certainly leading him on to most damaging statements now.

Bruce added another angle. "My next thought was that she might actually take some action when she found I was married. After all, I knew her very slightly, a pretty girl at a summer hotel, a girl who had been brought up to luxury and was teaching now because her family was impoverished. How did I know what course she might take? More pleasing and socially prominent girls than she have sued the sons of rich men for breach of promise."

"You were really afraid of that?" "I was, Mr. Martin; afraid because it might touch my wife, would draw her name into the public eye with all the usual dirty sensationalism, would taint our precious relationship with something sordid and common."

"You must have reached a rather abnormal state of mind," was my father's dry comment.

Lloyd's face changed expression. From showing confusion and distress and an effort to make us understand, it shifted to quiet, shame-faced caution.

"I think I was at the time," he admitted.

"When did you receive this note?" "About eight o'clock Thursday night when I called at the Geary Street hotel for my mail."

"You had just returned from your trip to Reno?" "Yes, about dinner time. We had registered at the St. Francis where we intended to stay until we found an apartment. Bernice waited there while I went the few blocks to my own rooms. I intended to pick up my mail, write a note to Connie, get a few more clothes, and tell the management I was moving out in a few days."

"But the note from Miss Sinclair changed your plans?" "I forgot them. I left the hotel with the note and began to walk about the streets, trying to decide what I should do. I didn't want to return to Bernice until I was calmed down and had determined on a course of action."

"What did you eventually decide?" "It seemed to me Bruce hesitated just a minute before he said, 'I decided to go to St. Joseph Friday afternoon to have a talk with Connie.'"

"But you were not found by the police until the following Tuesday?" "The flush that covered Bruce's face was deep, but he managed to look my father in the eyes.

"Of course, I read that she had been murdered. That was Friday morning. It was a great shock to me, naturally. My first thought was to spare my wife publicity far worse than any I had imagined. So I had to tell her the story. She was an awfully good sport. We rented an apartment for her out in the Sunset district, and I bought a small blue car which she could use if she wished."

"The one you took north." "Yes. The apartment was taken under her maiden name, as I hoped thus to avoid the papers' discovering that we were married. I went to see her as seldom as I could. I thought I would be mentioned as Connie's fiancé, that I might have to answer some formal questions, that my name would thus be before the public. But I never dreamed that I would be under actual suspicion."

"Had things turned out as you expected, what would your plans have been?"

I expected the murderer to be discovered in a few days. Then Bernice and I would go to Honolulu on a delayed honeymoon. By the time we came back, it would have been forgotten."

My father regarded him pretty coldly, I thought. He was not turning out to be much of a hero. He was certainly not a very clever criminal either. Even I could see how incriminating most of his statements sounded.

"Returning to that Thursday night, Mr. Lloyd, Dad almost demanded, so legal were the tones of his voice. "You received the note which so upset you at 8:00 o'clock. You walked about the streets for a while. When did you return to your hotel?"

"Why, I don't know. I sat in the square opposite the St. Francis for a while, in the park, you know. Then I went back to Bernice after I had made up my mind to see Connie Friday."

"You have no idea what time this was?"

"About 10:00 or 10:15, I should say."

"Did anyone see you come in who would remember the hour, anyone but your wife?"

"I think the desk clerk might. I left a call for the following morning."

"Now then, from the hour of 8:00 when you left the Geary Street place until the hour of 10:15 when you returned to the St. Francis, you were alone?"

"Yes."

"Did you talk to anyone, stay anywhere?"

"No."

"Then you really can establish no alibi for those two hours and a quarter?"

Bruce's face paled. He faltered slightly. "No-o, I don't—suppose—I can."

My father stood up. He was sterner than I had ever seen him in my life.

"Mr. Lloyd, I imagine that the detectives have waited some time expecting you to signify your willingness to leave. I am glad that you have seen fit to talk to me frankly at last. Shall we say good evening?"

Bruce rose, too. He looked directly at my father. "I shall see you tomorrow?" For advice on the questioning which will now come up?"

"I shall see you tomorrow."

After Bruce left, Mother turned to Dad, "I think you were awfully cruel to him. Suppose they question him tonight. Don't you want to help him?"

"Mother, that is a question I must decide tonight. My answer now would be that I shall give up the case."

"Then you think he is guilty?" I breathed.

"I am not sure of that. I am sure that he is a cad. I am sure that he will be tried for murder. I do not think I care to defend him."

BURLINGTON WINS OVER THE BENSALEM MENTORS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Feb. 12—In one of the most hotly contested games of the season the Burlington faculty defeated Bensalem faculty, 37-34. Reimer's shooting gave the Bensalem faculty a 12-10 lead at the half, but the rally by Burlington, headed by Brundie, soon overcame that lead in the second half.

Reimer led the Bensalem team with seven field goals and two fouls for a total of 16 points, followed by Myers with three field goals for six points. Brundie accumulated one-half of his team's scoring with eight field goals and three fouls for 13 points, and was followed by Rutan with four field goals and a foul for nine points.

DOUBLE WIND-UP TO BE FEATURE AT THE ARENA

TRENTON, Feb. 12—Tonight's wrestling show at the Trenton Arena will feature a double windup, each bout one fall, one hour time limit. In one half of the twin bill, Dean Detton, flashy Salt Lake City star, will come to grips with Joey Dusek, youngest of the Omaha tribe of wrestling brothers. The Blue Mask, mysterious grappler, who has been on an unpopular winning streak, faces Fred "Rubber-legs" Grubmeir, elongated hook scissor expert, in the other encounter.

A toss of a coin in the ring will decide which bout will go on last as the men have been arguing for the feature spot.

All four men are well known to Central Jersey grappling fans for their energetic, dynamic and sometimes off-color grappling. The Blue Mask and Dusek are the worst offenders in the semi-legal style of mat warfare, and as a result, Detton and Grubmeir are sentimental favorites to score.

ever, Dusek and the hooded brawler will be none the less dangerous because of the feelings of the fans.

They do not care what the audience thinks as long as they win and they use every means at their command to achieve victory. A corking pair of bouts is in prospect for the fans.

Vic Christie, popular Californian, meets Jim Coffield of Kansas City, and Ralph Garibaldi, St. Louis Italian, faces Jack Gasek of Detroit in the other bouts.

The first match will start at 8:30.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETEERS GAIN ONE-POINT WIN

By Jack Orr

An inspired band of basketeers from Fallington High laid in their brand new orange and black uniforms, held Bristol High to a 19-9 score at half time, but failed in the third and final cantos dropping a 23-12 decision to the Cardinal and Gray clothed warriors, here, last night.

It was Bristol's eighth consecutive win in the Lower Bucks County League, their tenth victory in eleven starts and their seventh triumph in a row. It was Fall's sixth consecutive loss in the circuit.

With Punk Zeffert once again hitting the cords, aided by Phil Carnvale and Tom Profy the Bunnies rang up an 8-2 advantage at the end of the initial period.

Huffnell added a pair of fouls as the second canto began and the score read 10-2 in favor of the homesters. At this point Coach Bill Dougherty sent in his "rock troops" and the Orange and Black quintet began to click. With Anderson, Brigle and Lovett hitting the cords, the visiting minions of Jim Doherty made seven tallies to bring the count to 10-9 as the half ended.

The Bunnies started their first club again as the half started and really began to work. They rang up eight points to Fallington's one in the third period and finished up with five tallies in the last quarter to the visitors' pair.

Nick Huffnell tied Punk Zeffert for the Bristol High men with seven points apiece while Phil Carnvale shook off his slump and counted a pair from the field with one from the gift line. Tom Profy and Charlie Hughes each added a goal from the scrimmage.

John Anderson led the visitors with a field goal and a pair of fouls while Ed Brigle and Hero Bill Lovett each had three tallies for the Orange and Black.

Phil Carnvale won the foul shooting contest at the intermissions when he converted seventeen of his twenty-five attempts. Parrot Dick was second with fifteen out of the 25.

The Bunnies will travel to Southampton Friday night to participate in what promises to be a thrilling battle. They will be after their ninth in a row in the conference.

There was a flag raising, with President Lincoln raising the colors. He had delivered an address but that was before we arrived. Later he greeted all and we were among those who shook his hand. The meeting was small as compared with such affairs today, with only about 250 attending.

The pictures of Lincoln, familiar to all today, are true to life, according to the Bristol township resident. "Lincoln wore a plain black suit, a regular 'quaker' costume" the day we saw him. He was tall and thin, as history books all tell us.

It was some time later in 1864 that Mr. King had the privilege of voting for the one whose birthday is observed today. "It was the first ballot I cast and I voted at the polling place in Newportville 'on age'." Then he added as more details of the election were recalled: "I remember that my father, the late James C. King, and also Caleb Taylor, who was quite a politician, both accompanied me and vouched for my age."

Thinking of the sudden and tragic death of Lincoln, Mr. King recalled of the news reaching the world, and of now later the house on Tenth street, in the city of Washington, D. C., where Lincoln died, was made into a small museum. "I frequently visit that place when I go to Washington." The capital city is a favorite spot with Mr. King, and he plans to make another trip there this week.

The one for whom memories of Lincoln vividly live is most active for his years. He will be 92 on his next natal anniversary, but the fact that he has seen more than nine decades pass in years, does not deter his activities.

Mr. King has never ceased to travel. He makes many and long journeys alone, yet not alone for he readily makes friends, and finds many to converse with on his trips. He went to St. Petersburg, Fla., once this winter, and plans the Washington trip for this week. He retired from service with the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1927, after serving over 40 years. He is keenly interested in all things of the day, and greatly belies his age.

Children and Adults Are Participants in Meeting

At the Willard memorial meeting of the W. C. T. U. held last evening, boys and girls from the Baptist group of the L. T. L. in charge of Miss Marie Watson, entertained with songs and yells. Boys from the Washington street group in charge of Miss Jane Rogers, presented tributes to Lincoln and Washington, selections on harmonica, solos, and the song "When Asked to Drink We Smile and Turn Our Glasses Upside Down."

At the business session, Mrs. Thomas Hanford, a former evangelistic director, conducted the devotional period, reading from Joshua 1:1-3, the command to Joshua to serve in the place of the fallen leader Moses.

A challenge to women of today to carry on the work of Frances Willard, quotations from writings of Frances Willard were given as responses to the roll call. Selections read by members presented the many-sided character and talents of Frances Willard as follows: A resourceful educator, ardent patriot, temperance worker, organizer of a great army, a matchless orator, servant of God.

"Vocal duet 'The Glow-worm,' by Mrs. John Weik and Miss Laura Ellis, was much enjoyed; as was also a tribute in verse to Miss Willard, to the tune of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

The social committee in charge of Miss Laura McCoy served cocoa and wafers.

All subscribers to the "Union Signal" are requested by the union to save the issue of February 8th for use at the "Union Signal" meeting to be held March 10th at 601 Radcliffe street.

could all be condensed into the single line from Gray's "Elegy"—"The Short and Simple Annals of the Poor."

Then came the march upward as the youth grew into the man—a steady succession of useful employments—marked by constant calls to public service in stations of widening responsibility.

His earnestness, depth, grasp, and above everything, the flawless virtue of his character, happily became manifest to the nation as the great crisis of union or disunion moved toward its tragic culmination in Civil War.

The recognition of the inevitableness of the conflict was almost coincident with the nation's recognition that Abraham Lincoln was the leader whom Providence had marked to save the Union and vindicate the cause of human freedom.

What a legacy he has left to succeeding generations of his grateful people—a legacy of devotion to country and loyalty to the ideals of democratic government.

A faithful follower of Jefferson, to whom he delighted to pay tribute in his writings and speeches; free from any prompting of personal ambition; devoted solely to the public welfare, he showed in every act and utterance his deep and inflexible attachment to American principles, traditions, policies and institutions.

Throughout his life he upheld the American system of government—freedom under the law, the equality of the citizen under the law, and the rights of all, without distinction of class or condition, to the protection of the laws.

The duty, which above all others he took upon himself, was to preserve intact the American Union—and he did.

He is in truth and will be KNOWN FOREVER AS THE SAVIOR OF HIS COUNTRY.

Turn where you will, read what you will, of his writings or recorded speeches, and you will see how utterly he consecrated himself to American ideals and to maintaining and perpetuating them.

There is no higher example for the citizen or the statesman to follow than LINCOLN!

How pitifully small seem the cheap activities and petty ambitions of selfish modern statesmen when contrasted with the patriotic devotion and unselfish sacrifice of this noble soul—a man whom history, with just instinct, will always rank with the greatest of our race.

Elect Two Men As Vice-Chairmen of Scout Council

ter is helpfully taking on Mr. Snyder's responsibilities.

Scout Executive William F. Livermore presented a survey of the condition of the units at the close of 1935, and their membership as of today. The ten year objective of the Bucks County Scouting Council is to equal the 1931 membership when the Council had two assistant Scout executives working with their Scout executive.

Through the help of the commissioners the Districts are slowly attaining their former membership. In 1931, the Lower Bucks District had 314 boys, and today there are 253. The District Board said that they would reach the 61 additional boys by the end of the tenth birthday during the earlier part of April 1937. Mr. Livermore also spoke of the reservations for Buecon Scout Camp, and the Doylestown Fair exhibits. All of the district troops have made reservation for the 1936 season at Buecon with the exception of Bristol No. 2 and No. 6, and Newportville. The leaders of the units are hoping to have their reservations into Scouting headquarters before the end of the month.

District chairman Pitonka urged the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire membership to make the two big council events of the year being held at Bristol the success they should become. The Ninth Council Meeting will be at Bristol on Monday evening, March 2nd, and the Ninth Council Birthday will be an all-day gathering on Saturday, April 11th. A special Bristol Community Welcome Committee is being organized to complete the plans for Scouting Birthday. Dramatizations and demonstrations will be a part of the program on both occasions.

Grace was said by neighborhood commissioner A. B. Stiles of Croydon, and troop committee chairman Alvin Marshall led in the three song periods. The report of the nominating committee was presented by chairman William Knight, and Alvin Marshall, Cubmaster Joseph Kieh expressed the hope that a greater interest would be developed to make cubbing a stronger part of the Scouting organization in each community. It was decided to have the next district board meeting on June 2nd.

for the use of the water mains there, they could refuse to furnish water to the residents there or charge a higher water rate to reimburse the municipality for the added cost of furnishing water to that section. This, it is believed, would be strongly opposed by the property owners there.

The question has been raised as to whether the mains in question do not now belong to Lower Makefield Township since they are laid in township roads. The avenues on this tract were built with the aid of the township, it is reported, and according to some of the attorneys the streets and avenues in that event become a public highway and are no longer private property, and instead of belonging to the developer, automatically become the property of the borough or township in which they are located.

Morrisville borough does not deny that this municipality does not own the water mains in the Edgehill Gardens tract but was merely asked to furnish water for the residents on the tract through the water system which had been installed by the developer.

It is said there was no mention of any charge for the use of the pipes by the developer and it is argued that now the new owner cannot come along and collect for the use of the mains, which, it is contended, belong to the township. The township has no water available to furnish the residents of this section and Morrisville is the nearest place which can supply the needs.

The four inch mains are laid on Greenway and Overton avenues. The two inch mains are run to the houses on East Ferry road and to the houses on the east side of North Pennsylvania avenue between Ridge and Ferry roads. The service on Pennsylvania avenue is furnished from Greenway avenue and enters these properties from the rear.

There are also three fire plugs and two or three valves on the tract.
